We are informed that in HCC documents that "Development, human activity and climate change are putting pressure on Lower Hutt's natural environment, its native trees and animals, landscapes and coastline. This means we need to take stock of how we identify, manage and protect these treasures.

The significance or value of a landscape is determined by natural elements, by scenic or sensory value, and by cultural, spiritual, or social associations. Natural features are generally smaller parts of the larger landscape that have distinctive characteristics.
